Over the past few weeks and months, I have learned a lot about the US presidential election. However, I cannot honestly say that my general opinion on what a US president should be like has changed. I have never voted and I will never vote, I am a musician and I cannot vote for either of the major parties. On the topic of political parties, I consider myself a socialist and a feminist, but I do not know anyone who shares my opinions. It has become obvious to me that the current political climate is an irrational one. According to my research and all of the polls that I have read and studied, the majority of Americans – the majority of white Americans – want Trump to become president and the majority of Americans, black, Hispanic and Asian Americans want Hillary Clinton to be the president. It is mind-blowing to me that so many people are in agreement with this ideology and neither party is willing to change their ideals in order to gain support. I have been accused of being racist, by those who do not
