The serial number is 12 digits long. I do not have a serial number. Why must I provide one? The serial number has to be an exact match for the one on the back of the case. PIV has had a bit of a problem getting the serial number verified (not having much success yet with that as they claim. My serial number is all 1's and 0's. I just received the B4 in the mail a few days ago. What would you recommend? Is it going to work? Or am I going to have to return to the store and get a different product? I have not used the B4 at all as it is a bit new to me. I'm a longtime B4 owner who just received my B4 II update today. To install it, it requests a serial number just like all NI products. The serial number is 12 digits long. I do not have a serial number. Why must I provide one? No, that's just PIV's paranoia. Each time I order from them (which is not often) I get what's called "a new serial". Unfortunately, B4 II is not available right now. It is on the way but it is taking longer than anticipated for the high priced graphics to be delivered. We are expecting the units to be delivered to the PIV store by the end of this week. I'm really sorry to hear this, but the only way for us to get the serial numbers verified is if we can verify them from the factory. f3e1b3768c
