Typically, a single channel operates at a center frequency and the spectrum of the channel is spread out over a range of frequencies by a scheme called "orthogonal frequency division multiplexing" (OFDM). Data to be transmitted for the channel is converted from digital to analog and is modulated to a radio frequency by a transmitter. A receiver processes the transmitted radio frequency signal to recover the data. Typically, an OFDM signal comprises a stream of symbols. For each symbol, a cyclic prefix is added to create a short sequence of samples. The cyclic prefix is used to help the receiver properly deal with multipath in the channel, i.e., due to reflections off of nearby objects. The cyclic prefix is inserted in the beginning of the sequence. As a result, the receiver can use a FFT to separate the data signal from the cyclic prefix.Commemoration of the victims of the Russian-Polish War The Commemoration of the Victims of the Russian-Polish War () is a special memorial service held annually in Russia, Ukraine, Belarus, and Poland.
